Starving Your Dog or Cat Is Against the Law . . .

I think (this) unhealthy (this) is not good for us.
You ARE WHAT YOU EAT!

If the average person led to withhold food their dog or cat for or weeks, that person probably be charged cruelty to animals and would take the n with it. Yet, egg industry deprives mil- all food for but the cam- g and no il.

During the forced molt, hungry hens peck desperately at empty metal food trays. They are driven to pluck and eat each others' feathers to obtain nutrients. Denuded of feathers and deranged by fear, they lose up to 35 percent of their body weight. Countless hens die from the stress.

Forced molting is so stressful it increases bone breakage and impairs the hens' immune system, predisposing the birds and their eggs to Salmonella infection. USDA immunol-g industry intentionally starves - en... flocks to manipulate their metabolism, forcing exhausted hens to produce a few hundred more eggs before going to slaughter.

ogist Peter Holt reports, "Molting, in combination with an SE (Salmonella enteritidis) infection, created an actual disease state in the alimentary tract of affected hens."
